

What's next after A levels?

Myth

I'm predicted good grades in my 'A' levels so surely the best option is to go to university to study for a degree?
.....

Fact

Many employers offer Higher and Degree level apprenticeships which require good grades and are advertised on UCAS. You will spend time at university but will mainly be based in the workplace and paid a salary throughout.

De Montfort University (DMU)

Many universities are now offering higher and degree apprenticeship programmes. Their qualifications are developed directly with employers, ensuring that the learning is moulded to meet the needs of today's business.

De Montfort University (DMU) works with employers to deliver Higher and Degree level apprenticeship programmes.

Current programmes include management, senior leadership, electronic engineering, building services, cyber security, digital and technology.

New programmes planned for launch in 2018-19 include architecture and hearing aid dispensing.

To find out more visit dmu.ac.uk/apprenticeships

More for jobseekers

More for employers

Return to #TheRealDeal

It's great to be able to offer such a fantastic opportunity to hard working young people to get a foot on the career ladder as well as gaining a degree qualification without the associated costs and student loans. Our students' energy and dynamism, spurred on by their learning through the course, brings fresh ideas and a real dedication to our business.

*Fiona Treadwell,
Talent and Development
Business Partner,
Mattioli Woods plc*

